Book by Anderson, Jack M.

I worked with Jack on the Fire Department in Lakewood Washington. I knew he had been captured by the North Koreans and shot in the back of the head and left for dead. But this book tells a lot about Jack that I didn't know, he was quiet about his time in the service. Jack is totally fearless and he always did his job. The Book tells the story of his war times in the second world war and Korea. I would recommend it to anyone that enjoys reading about what life is like for soldiers that put their lives on the line for their country.

I loved the book, I know Jack personally, he signed the copy I bought. I have a great appreciation for Jack and what he all his fellow solders went through.

At seventeen Jack leads a rifle squad and, later, a rifle platoon in some of the worst fighting in the Southwest Pacific Area. You will marvel at extra ordinary events. You will experience his grief as comrades and companions are wounded, killed and lost to the Japanese, Korean and Chinese enemy. Then you will rejoice with him in his successes, in the deep friendships that come his way; and for a loving, praying girl he marries, and a Savior he knows. His brief stay as a POW to the Chinese will wrench your heart.

This book is filled with first hand knowledge of the events during WWII and the Korean War. My father wrote the introduction and is mentioned several times in the book which prompted me to start reading it. Some of the accounts in the book I heard from my father. I have read most of it in sections but now have begun at the very beginning and it's extremely well written and grabs your attention.

Jack was my battalion S-2 sergeant. His narrative of events describe the frustration & problems faced by units poorly prepared for fighting an enemy we couldn't understand. It's a must read for the untrained as well as the professional soldier.
