Synopsis

DECODE THE QUESTIONS TO DEFEAT THE LSAT with this book of step-by-step solutions & explanations for 1,000+ real LSAT questions! All the practice in the world won't help you improve if you can't understand what you're doing wrong. That's why The Princeton Review's new LSAT Decoded series is the perfect companion for LSAC's Official LSAT PrepTest® books. LSAC provides the real exams but no accompanying answer explanations; we skip the question stems but provide valuable, step-by-step solutions for every one of the 1000+ questions on those tests. Armed with explanations, you can start to understand why you got an LSAT question wrong and feel confident about when you're getting them right. By working through each question methodically, you'll learn how the test-writers think, and how to outthink them; you'll start to pinpoint the argument types that consistently trip you up, and learn the best ways to handle them; you'll train yourself to swiftly and effectively build diagrams for tricky Logic Games. With the test-conquering tips and strategies found in LSAT Decoded's explanations, you'll finally be able to decipher the secret language of this notoriously difficult exam. This book is intended to be used as a companion to the LSAC-issued 10 New Actual, Official LSAT PrepTests with Comparative Reading (PrepTests 52-61), which contains real tests administered from September 2007 to October 2010. The full text of the PrepTests is not included in this book.

Customer Reviews

The experts at The Princeton Review have been helping students, parents, and educators achieve the best results at every stage of the education process since 1981. The Princeton Review has helped millions succeed on standardized tests, and provides expert advice and instruction to help parents, teachers, students, and schools navigate the complexities of school admission. In addition to classroom courses in over 40 states and 20 countries, The Princeton Review also offers online and school-based courses, one-to-one and small-group tutoring as well as online services in both admission counseling and academic homework help.

Princeton review materials are pretty much worthless. Slightly more feedback than looking at the answer key. For people trying to get to the next level, these offer little.

Only useful for setting up games. Anything else, it basically just restates the stimulus and then tells you it's right because it's right. It does not break down why the answer is correct from the question stem or question type.

I took a quick look at these and can't help but agree they could have gone a bit further. For many questions, they simply state "Yes." or "No." when attempting to explain an answer choice (followed by a brief explanation), but don't fully explain the logic behind the questions, why a particular answer choice might have been tempting, but is still ultimately wrong. Much of what's necessary to achieve real improvement on the LSAT comes from reviewing, in detail, everything you get wrong and/or have trouble with. Here are some tips on reviewing: * Analyze exactly where your error or misunderstanding stemmed from. Was it something in the passage or the answer choices? * If it was in the passage, was it your approach to reading the passage that was ineffective or incorrect, or was it something in the passage text itself that you misunderstood? * If it was in the answer choices, what was it in the incorrect answer choice you chose, identify what it was about the wrong answer choice that tempted you. Then identify what made it wrong in the end. * If there was something in the correct answer that made it seem unappealing, identify what it was, and identify what made it correct in the end. Through repeating this process several times, you'll start to identify patterns in how LSAC constructs tempting incorrect answer choices. You'll see different types of techniques LSAC uses to make incorrect answer choices tempting. This was the philosophy that guided me when I wrote explanations for over 1,000+ LSAT questions, many of which were for PrepTests 52-61. (You'll find them on my website.) Feel free to get in touch if you need anything. I always love to hear from students.
