Customer Reviews

I found this book very fascinating and I couldn't put it down. It is full of lots of amazing information and encounters from different people. I let the dishes go for a couple of days as I was glued to Brad and Sherry Steiger's book with their own experiences included.

This was a fascinating read, owing both to the author's skill in articulate composition and the variety of subjects he weaved together for an absorbing adventure. No unnecessary filler, no tiresome inclusions of contributing accounts, and no winded reflections of the usual paranormal phenomenon. If this work is food for thought, then it's a Porterhouse with a lot to chew on. Unless one is completely void (read: mainstream stubbornness) of an inner awareness, this work will touch the reader with varying degrees of faith, awe and conviction. Moreover, practically all the topics reach into our perception of everyday existence, such as terror and Love, dark shadows, orbs and the Near-Death Experience; while more deeper concepts include ghosts and teleportation, angels and mischievous creatures, Earth's hidden worlds and onward into space and parallel universes and, of course, aliens, the Soul and the Afterlife. Overall I am looking forward to rereading this one sometime down the road. Well done!

Angels, gremlins, goblins, ghouls, ghosts, greys and gods. Little grey halflings and wild-eyed monsters that haunt our memories and invade our dreams. Sightings by day and sightings by night. Sightings by terrified and awestruck individuals or crowds of amazed observers. Craft described as great black triangles slipping swiftly and silently through the skies of evening, and brightly glowing disks and orbs, hovering over sleeping cities and far fields, sometimes attended by odd, little shepherd spheres, and sometimes accompanied by helicopters or pursued by military jet interceptors. People claiming to have been captured by malevolent little aliens; poked, prodded and probed in a most uncivilized manner. Female humans claiming they have been impregnated by their captors, surrendering hybrid children at an appointed time and later impassively observing their children and others being cultivated in vats of bubbling fluid. What is this intelligence, this darkling, this "Other" that has for centuries confounded and terrified humankind with their often-examined but rarely-explained agenda? How and why do their craft, which are called flying saucers or UFOs, and are thought of as "space ships" arrive in our space/time? How do they maneuver here? Why and how do they so suddenly vanish? What do they want of earthlings? How can creatures from other galaxies breathe Earth gases? How can such frail creatures cope with Earth gravity? How can beings who apparently have no sex organs-- neither male nor female--impregnate humans? Why do they never smile, never laugh? Why do they never eat? How do they maintain life without sustenance? So many questions and we struggle for answers, finding but few. Perhaps, as hinted in the Introduction, they are not at all what they seem to be. Perhaps they are images projected onto the human psyche--a collective, ever-changing mandala--nothing more than clever lantern shows flickering like elusive fireflies in the gardens behind our eyes. We turn away for a moment and when we venture a second look, the fireflies have vanished, only to reappear at another time and another place. Here, in this compelling and well-researched signature book by Brad and Sherry Steiger are pages and pages of sightings and events, encounters both terrifying and dangerous, unimaginable and unexplained, as related to the authors by friends, acquaintances, and strangers who have seen odd things in the skies, heard the unbidden voices, the cries and screams of beasts, and felt the cold, unwelcomed touch of groping, alien fingers; who have been held immobile by the mesmerizing stare of dark, impassive alien eyes. There is a hole in the sky and, apparently, something remarkable and sinister has fallen through it. Wrap up before a crackling hearth with a steaming cup of hot chocolate and enjoy "Real Encounters, Different Dimensions, and Otherworldly Beings." William Kern, a cautious believer

I bought THIS---and "THE ENIGMAS OF HISTORY: Myths, Mysteries and Madness from Around the World"---to read in bed. While THIS book has many illustrations, unlike Alan Baker's; both the Steigers' [his wife co-wrote] book, and, this one, are BOTH excellent additions to my eclectic library. THIS book has 20 chapters that take MORE than the other book's average, of 4 to 10 pages, and has diversely-expanded[sub-]topics. "...ENIGMA..."s 31 chapters stick to their subjects; the other[wordly] book has less chapters, but more MEAT, so to speak. I'm half-way through BOTH books. I can, whole-heartedly, recommend BOTH to anyone that likes a little enigmatic history...before falling asleep. Pleasant dreams!

I love Brad Steiger's work in ufology. This book covers a number of strange topics. The other dimensions and shadow people were probably my favorite parts. The stories about Brad and Sherry were also cool. The best story is the alien walking into the Roswell Museum story. I also have to mention the Butterfly People story as one of my favorites. Worth buying!

Brad and his beautiful wife are excellent authors and stellar Earth family. I found this book inspiring, inspirational and broad in scope. Most of all, I respected the authors' approach to the difficulty of expressing interaction with the unknown and unseen that surrounds everyone everyday. There are many inspiring notes of wisdom that all should consider in the course of their Spiritual/Consciousness journey of life. Captivating!

This was a real page-turner. I could not stop reading it. Very informative and enlightening. Very much worth reading. I enjoyed this book.

There are many unknown & possible variables to comprehend about our World. You are either open minded enough to investigate, bravely accept or be entertained by the thought that we are not Alone. The reader should of course take some of the frightening stories w/ a grain of Salt. Otherwise you may need to sleep with a teddy bear and a night light on if you get too spooked. Enjoy!
