Tom Friedman is a writer, editor and documentary producer and worked in public television for nearly 25 years at its flagship station, WGBH Boston. In 1996, he won a George Foster Peabody Award for the critically acclaimed science documentary series Odyssey of Life. He is also the author of two books about business and economics.

Gift for 80-something person who has memory issues and gets confused at times about abstract things. It was frustrating more than fun, although he claims he likes the book. For someone who enjoys brain teasers, this would be a great gift. The contents don't deal with popular culture (as i recall) so that helps. The book also has some excellent quotes from famous (and not so famous) people are memory and the like. I give it 3 stars because it is more challenging than it looks.

This was more like a trival pursuits in a book. I was looking for puzzles for seniors who are being to lose their decision making facilities.

Purchased along with some other workbooks for my mother who is getting dementia. Some of the puzzles and things I can't even do and I consider myself to be pretty smart. More reading than puzzles. I doubt my mother will even try to use it. :(

This book is funny but as far as whether or not it Really works is to be determined. It is thought provoking, aside from just being a fun jab at the old person in your life.

Purchased for my elderly parents but I am surprised that I could not solve some of the puzzles. Great brain workout.

Very engaging book for those with Dementia

THIS book is fun for ANY age. Puzzles are unique and interesting. Some are more difficult while others are slightly easier but every puzzle is fun.

I bought it for my 85 year old Mom, she loved it.
