THE FOOD NETWORK is a television network devoted exclusively to food and entertaining 24 hours a day. Today it reaches more than 90 million households in the United States and can be seen internationally in Canada, Australia, Korea, Thailand, Singapore, the Philippines, Monaco, Andorra, Africa, France, and the French-speaking territories in the Caribbean and Polynesia. Its informative and entertaining lifestyle programming--more than 95% is originally produced--includes world renowned chefs, restaurateurs, passionate gourmets, working mothers and celebrities and covers everything from gourmet meals and healthy diet to quick weeknight meals and wine. Food Network has been responsible for creating stars like Emeril Lagasse, Rachael Ray and Paula Deen, giving national exposure to chefs like Bobby Flay and Mario Batali, and bringing viewers the hugely popular Iron Chef America, based on the format of the Japanese cult sensation. Foodnetwork.com averages more than 7 million hits monthly, and the bi-monthly Food Network Magazine debuted with the November/December 2008 issue. More than 1 million copies of Food Network's branded books have been sold since 2004, and many of 2006's best-selling cookbooks were authored by

Food Network chefs, including Rachael Ray, Paula Deen, Emeril Lagasse, Alton Brown, and others.

I bought this for my boyfriend for our anniversary and he loved it, the recipes have really nice pictures and are easy enough to follow that he is even able to use them

Good starter cookbook for newly married young couple

This book is easy to follow, and quickly read. It's very basic, but it would be helpful to those who have no experience yet in cooking.

great first cookbook for young adults

My college student daughter loves this. The recipes are modern and unfussy and the intro with all of the information on food storage, expiration, etc. are perfect.

Great information!

Excellent product
