Richard Siddaway is an experienced all-around Windows administrator with two decades of experience. He is interested in automation techniques, including automating job creation and submission on mainframes. He has been working with Active Directory since it first appeared and has been speaking and writing about automating the management of AD for a number of years.

Good book to provide some context on AD and Powershell however that is really where it ends. There were syntax errors and also noticed that the author did not really provide a template to create a lab environment for. Would be nice in the next update to perhaps include some guidance on the set ups so users can save time. You learn more about powershell than you do AD with this one.

Just going through it now
