Kenneth R. Wing, J.D., lives with his wife, Gretchen, and their two children, McKenzie and Casey, on Lopez Island in the State of Washington. He teaches courses on constitutional law and health law at the School of Law at Seattle University. Before moving to Washington, Professor Wing taught for 13 years at the School of Law and the School of Public Health at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. His prior work experience includes two years with the Department of Health in California and three years with the National Health Law Program, a legal services backup center in Los Angeles, California. He is a graduate of the University of California, Santa Cruz; Harvard Law School; and Harvard School of Public Health.

As described.

I bought this book for a supplementary book for my Public Health and Law class. It so far has come in very handy.

Never buy from Betterworldbooks! I've been a very happy customer up until I bought from "Beterworldbooks". I ordered a text book from them and it took about 3 weeks too long to get to me, longer than any other book sellers. They sent me the wrong text book, with the same author but the wrong edition. As if that was not enough, they sent me a library copy as it still had the library's name printed on it, and it was more than two decades old. Obviously if I am going to school now, a library stolen copy of a text book that is more than two decades old, is no good for me now. I contacted this seller but I never got a response nor did I get my money back. My advise to everyone never buy from them ! I know I never will.
